

Red Level Networks Achieves Cymphonix Partner Status

Novi, Mich., Jan. 17, 2008- Red Level Networks, an IT solution provider, announced it recently achieved certified partner status from Cymphonix. Through this certification, Red Level will be able to offer its customers the ability to control both Internet browsing activity and Internet application activity, ensuring that mission critical information has the resources it needs.

“We’re excited to have Red Level as a certified partner,” said Dave Neuenschwander, Director of Sales at Cymphonix. “As a certified partner, Red Level will be able to provide the best installation and management services to customers in Michigan and surrounding states.”

“Partner status from Cymphonix will lend well to the markets that Red Level currently services” said David King, Red Level founder and president. “As the Internet continues to change and grow, our customers need the ability to control all aspects of the Internet, and through this certification we are able to help them achieve these goals.”

To achieve partner status from Cymphonix, Red Level engineers and sales staff participated in extensive training regarding Cymphonix’s offerings. This advance level of understanding will ensure Red Levels’ customers have complete visibility and control over the Internet.

Cymphonix’s offerings were initially built to specifically address the needs of schools, districts and institutions of higher learning. These organizations have savvy users that know how to bypass traditional filters and Internet controls. With a Cymphonix solution in place, educational organizations ensure students and faculty are safe from Internet threats and inappropriate content.

Red Level, currently services 175 organizations throughout southeast Michigan, provides full service IT solutions, including design, installation and ongoing network, customized managed and online back-up services.
