

Michigan Chapter of IAMCP Selects Vice President

Red Level Networks' President, David King, Selected

Novi, Mich. – January 4, 2012 – David King of Red Level Networks has been selected as Vice President of the International Association of Microsoft Channel Partners (IAMCP), Michigan Chapter. IAMCP represents top partners from around the world to join together to offer opinions and suggestions for Microsoft programs.

“Red Level Networks strives to facilitate efficient and scalable technologies through consistent learning, training and idea sharing,” said David King, president of Red Level Networks. “Taking a more active role in IAMCP helps Red Level Networks increase its knowledge while having the opportunity to share best practices with other technology partners.”

Red Level Networks services small and mid-sized businesses and schools throughout Michigan, providing customized full service IT solutions, such as virtualization, disaster recovery, storage, antivirus, and REDCare+, its own line of managed services. With growth of over 20% year over year and more than 300 clients in twenty-two markets, Red Level Networks maintains an organized framework while providing solutions for a variety of business needs.

“We look forward to David’s involvement as our new Vice President at the Michigan chapter of the IAMCP. David brings years of knowledge on IT and technology services along with his best practices for business. Together, we can help bring more business to Michigan,” said Scott Pettit, IAMCP President of the Michigan chapter.

About IAMCP

The International Association of Microsoft Channel Partners (IAMCP) represents Microsoft’s best of breed partners from around the globe. Our organization was formed in 1994 and provides Microsoft Partners a voice into Microsoft programs, to the IT community at large, as well as a vehicle to facilitate mutual growth and business development among partners. The non-profit organization is operated by an annually elected board of directors, and is funded through membership fees and sponsor grants. The IAMCP – United States has 35 chapters throughout the continental United States. Through membership meetings, social networking events and local websites, IAMCP – United States chapters link members with each other and with industry news from Microsoft. When you join an IAMCP – US chapter you’re on your way to accessing networking capabilities and skill sets normally limited to only big name constituencies.
